

I would like to ask that the FCC not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's telephone privacy law. Our law has made our homelife much more enjoyable. Now after work my family can enjoy a peacefull evening, instead of answering calls from telemarketers that we have no desire to talk to! Since our law was passed we have gone from five to ten calls per week to maybe one or two a month. It is obvious that the law works, and should not be weakened, but even expanded if anything. Thank you for your consideration in this matter. James M. Harris